

HaTov V'HaMeitiv or SheHecheyanu

Say ha'tov v'ha'meitiv instead of she'hecheyanu when two or more people benefit from or enjoy something.

EXAMPLES

- If your wife or husband will enjoy and use the new item too.
- When wine is already on the table and a second bottle of wine that is as good as, or better than, the first bottle is brought to the table (and more than one person will drink that second bottle of wine).

NOTE

When two or more people are eating a new fruit that is in season, each person says the blessings al pri ha'eitz and then she'hechaynu (and not ha'tov v'hameitiv).
